Example

Should teenagers have a part time job?

In the adolescence young people need some more independence to feel a bit more responsible. They in this period begin to spend inevitably more money to go out with friends, so they need also a part-time job to earn extra-money. A part-time job for a youth can be considered a good choice for at least three reason, furthermore earning extra money, while you are working you can make new friends and make an idea of what have a real job means. Although there are also motivations to not have a part-time job, two of this are that it could take away time from the study and it could moreover make stressful situations. To conclude I think teenagers should make this experience of job because they have a life of work in front of them so is important they prepare themselves to that.
